The Game of Golf

Golf is a game played in large spaces, the playgrounds, or courses, requiring many acres. A "short course" requires at least sixty to seventy acres of ground while a "long course" needs 150 acres or more to give players the opportunity to develop masterful playing. The playing field does not require stated dimensions or regular shape. A "short course" demands sufficient space to locate nine "holes" from one hundred to five hundred yards apart. The direct distance between the holes must be on lines that are not crossed or closely approached by each other. This arrangement is required to protect the players from flying shots from the clubs of other players. The distances between holes vary as much as possible to give skill in judging shots. Whether the course be short or long, the arrangement should be such that the last hole is near the starting point. In the first half of the play the participants are "playing out," or moving away from the starting point; in the second half they are "playing in," or approaching the point from which they began to play.

The field may be level, or it may be quite hilly and wooded in places. The hazards of the game increase with the difficulties the surface presents. On flat courses artificial mounds of earth called bunkers are made to develop greater playing skill these are also given the general term hazards. In front of a hazard a long narrow pit may be dug to the depth of over a foot and its bottom covered with several inches of shifting sand. This adds greatly to the difficulty of the player whose ball falls into the pit for several shots may be wasted before the ball is again on the fairway.

Each hole is really a metal cup four inches in diameter and four inches deep, sunk into the ground until its top is level with the surface. The ball must be knocked into the cup, a feat requiring considerable skill. To facilitate this play the turf on all sides of the cup for about thirty feet is made very smooth. It is usually heavily grassed, and the grass is kept closely cut; sometimes, however, it is a hard clay surface. This square is called the green, and the play on the ball toward the cup from any point on the green is called putting, the u is given the short sound.

One person may play alone—a "single"; two may play a match game—a "twoome"; three—a "three-ome"; or four—a "four-ome." Only once in playing each hole may the ball be placed definitely in position for a stroke, and that is for the first stroke off each starting place, or tee. In these instances a small mound of sand, about an inch high may serve as a base upon which to rest the ball. The ball is then struck by a club called the driver; it is sent as nearly as possible in the direction of the first hole, and at the spot where it drops another club, the mid-iron, cleck, brassie, niblick or other special

Mexico's Newest Dairy Makes Contented Cows

The Hotel Hoxsey Dairy, of this city, is not only one of the most modern and finest in this section of Missouri but is probably the only dairy of its kind outside of the larger cities. In fact only a few of the large metropolitan hotels can boast of a dairy of its own.

The dairy is the property of T. J. Hoxsey and John T. Buckner and is located at the west end of the Boulevard and where the Mexico Fair grounds once were. In fact the monster barn 160 feet long, 90 feet wide and practically three stories high was once the amphitheatre of the Mexico Fair Association.

The ground is a beautiful spread of blue grassed prairie with a large lake in its eastern end that lends beauty to the farm with its immense white barn and level green turf.

On the south side of the interior of the barn are the winter quarters of the herd which consists of pure bred jerseys, guernseys, holsteins and short-horns. At present there are 22 cows in the herd. On the north side of the barn is the milking quarters with concrete floor, drains and special feeding troughs. The barn is electrically lighted and the two electric milking units add to the sanitary arrangement so noticeable in the barn. The same motor that runs the milking machines also operates the pump which draws the water from the lake to supply the various troughs, and equipment used to boil all milking machines and receptacles required for milking.

When the cows enter the barn they go to their milking stansions as if they had been especially trained for this act to delight an audience. The milking machines do their work rapidly, efficiently and cleanly. Two men are in charge of the barn and work and in their white coats finish the sanitary touch the management so anxiously desired.

Pure bred big type Poland China pigs are also a part of the equipment of the farm. The herd is headed by "Big Bob" a Poland China boar of fine pedigree. There are at present 160 hogs on the place.

All of the feeding troughs for the hogs are of concrete and the equipment about the farm is not only thoroughly modern but the best procurable. A large truck, enamelled white, is used to transport the milk.

Practically all of the milk from the dairy is used at the hotel and Mr. Hoxsey delights in showing his friends the dairy and keeping it up to the high standard he has set.

HICKMAN FUNERAL

The funeral of P. M. Hickman, who died in Des Moines Friday was held Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m. Burial was made in the family lot at South Fork Church near Santa Fe.

The deceased was a brother of Dr. W. H. Hickman of this city. Besides his brother, he is survived by his wife and two sons of Des Moines, all of whom attended the funeral.

John C. Holloway, a nephew of the deceased well known North of town where he was reared and resided until some years ago, also attended the funeral. Holloway now lives in Columbia.

The Ledger joins friends in extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

Buy Your Coal Direct

From Mine—Big Saving

The high cost of coal is a thing of the past! At least, there are no complaints on this account—since the removal of government restrictions—among those who have learned how to buy coal. The way to buy coal is to get it direct from the mines. This saves several middlemen's profits. It saves hauling expenses. Anyone can now buy at mine prices, whether a carload buyer or one who uses only ten or fifteen tons a year. This has been made possible through a plan evolved by a large and old-established concern, THE BERNICE COAL COMPANY, with main offices at 560 Commercial, Chicago.

This company has thousands of customers in various sections of the United States who receive all of their coal direct from the mines. These customers are pleased not only because of the many dollars they save every year, but also because of the quality of coal they are getting. Many write that they never before had coal that makes so little dust, that burns so well, leaving so few ashes. If you are a coal user—whether you use hard or soft coal, much or little—it will be greatly to your advantage to write the BERNICE COAL CO., at once for prices, stating kind and quantity of coal you use.
